DID HE ELOPE?

JOHN T. TERRAS LEAVES HIS WIFE, HOME AND CREDITORS.

He headed for San Francisco, They say, with a woman who is not his wife.

"Jack Terras has skipped with another fellow's wife, and all the money he could get hold of."

That was the rumor that has agitated the wonded quiet neighborhood of Twelfth and E streets, during the last two or three days.

John T. Terras, or "Jack," as he is familiarly called, has for over a year and a half been employed as a bookkeeper and clerk for J. M. Morrison & Co., grocers, at the corner of Twelfth and E streets. "Jack" is a good-looking young man, and inclined to be "sporty," as the expression goes, but nevertheless, during the time he was employed at the grocery, up to Friday last, his employers never had occasion to suspect that anything was wrong with him. He has been married for a couple of years to a young lady, who those who know her say, is one of the most amiable, lovable and respectable women in Sacramento—and it was always supposed that the couple lived hand-in-hand together, and that "Jack" doted on his wife.

But Jack has left for parts unknown for reasons unknown and with a lady companion unknown.

Last Friday, Terras started to go to the California picnic, from Scott's, rich.

Mr. Morrison to let the young man off, so that he might assist in attending the wants of thirsty picnickers at one of the bars.

Mr. Morrison offered to pay his expenses, and the young man accepted.

He was given a hand to get him to work for somebody else. Jack said he preferred a good time to working, anyhow, and so the young man accepted his employer's kind offer, and so he was off to his wife's side to go to the picnic with some friends during the morning, and promised to join her in the afternoon—Mr. Morrison having promised to let him go to his wife.

JACK DIDN'T PICNIC.

At next Sunday's open-air concert at the Plaza, by the First Artillery Band, another choice programme will be rendered, and it is already being rehearsed by the band.

The concert will commence promptly at 7 o'clock, and the selections will be:

March: "Sad Pads" (Stahl); overture, "Great West" (South); waltz, "Edinburgh" (waltz on Scotch melody); fantaisie, "Meyerbeer"; march, "Meyerbeer"; "Little Pack" (composed by M. F. Tobin (Neale); cornet solo, "Arte Bravura"; (Hasseman), by T. B. Costello; grand section, "Tristes (Verdi); gavotte, "The Love-Dream" (Ory); march, "Arkansas Traveler," played by Gilmore's Band in New York; "Star Spangled Banner."

During the evening a collection of Spanish melodies brought from Mexico; J. B. G. Cooley, including the Carmen, Manzanares and the original "Soberas Olas," will be played.

WORLD TO JACK. When noon arrived, Mr. Morrison relieved him as promised, and the clerk bided himself away, as his employer believed, to the picnic grounds. But such was not the case. On the contrary, the young man sought the apartments of his erstwhile wife and proceeded to pack up what clothing and articles of value he possessed.

The next seen of him was at the depot.

He was accompanied by a young woman, who runs her in the wife of another man. They had tickets for the Bay in their possession.

The main appearance of the clever young man, who left Sacramento, with Mrs. Terras and Mr. Morrison together, was making explanations as to Jack's whereabouts.

Mr. Morrison proceeded at once to investigate.

He was satisfied that the clerk had his mind made up to cheat the gallows by the suicide route.

Several days ago he sent a package of strychnine to a fellow prisoner to keep for him, and the latter hid it in the jail yard.

The clerk's officers learned of it and compelled the prisoner to give up the poison, and then the clerk added the poison a couple of days later.

"I am the Secretary of it."

"What was the object in keeping this man?"

"Oh, not at all. I sent a notice to one of the papers yesterday, but I suppose there was some misunderstanding about it."

ONE SOLITARY PAIR.

The programme, as announced last Friday, called for three stakes—the yearling, the two-year-old year-old, and the three-year-old pacing stake. These filled with an aggregate of twenty-two entries, six in the stakes, eleven in the second, and five in the third.

Among the owners represented were breeders in various parts of Sacramento, Yolo, San Joaquin, Napa, Sonoma and Solano counties, and a number of them of them of them choice breeding. But there seems to have been a general lack of interest taken in the meeting, for only two of the colts started up yesterday on the track. One of them was—nobody—T. J. Draise's Farmington Boy, from San Joaquin county, and A. L. Whitney's Annie Bell, from Sonoma county. These were two-year-olds.

After a funeral-like silence, the colts were unblanked and driven around the track. Annie Bell was the winner in two straight heats. Her competitor was lame, and was easily beaten. Time, 2:33—3:01.

A PRIVATE RACE.

It was decided that it was too bad to disappoint the large (1) number of people who had come to witness a day's sport, so Willard's horses were to be run.

Hendrickson and his son, the latter of whom had been to one of their shares for private stake.

Hendrickson came to the post behind a little horse known as Frank, and pilot piloted his black filly, Chico.

The first heat was won by Chico by one length in 2:39.

A SAN JOAQUIN COUNTY man, who said he wanted to make expenses somehow, had set up a race between his horse and a team of horses.

He was to be paid $100 for each heat.

William Bundy, the fireman, is much more seriously injured, and although he is doing as well as could be expected there is still a doubt as to his recovery.

Franklin, the tailor, was shot in the head and was still unconscious.

"Who was the lady he had with him?" asked the reporter.

"He had no lady with him," she replied.

"Were you not conversing with him and another young lady at the depot?"

"Well, yes."

"And did not the young lady accompany you on the car?"

"Yes, but I can swear that he did not know her before that day. She was a friend of mine from Red Bluff, and is not a married lady. She had a little girl, who was going to Oskaloosa, and I met her at the depot to look after them on the way down. That was all there was to it. I'll tell Mrs. Terras the same thing, although I don't know if she will believe it in this affair."

The lady who volunteered the opinion that Terras had not "skipped," but was only for a few days and would return, declined to tell why she formed this opinion.

As soon as the news of Terras' disappearance became generally known about town, the walls of numerous creditors are said to have rent for him. "Friends" who had been worked for him in a sized loan inquired anxiously for the young man, and also a prominent K-street tailor.

MARRIAGE A FAILURE.

Instances where the Nuptial Knot Needs to be Untied.

"We were married in Sacramento in May, 1889, and never since that time has he contributed a cent toward my support," said Mrs. Emma Aymeyer, in Superior Judge Armstrong's Court, yesterday while on the witness stand as plaintiff in a suit for divorce from Charles Aymeyer.

In answer to questions by her attorney, Frank Estabrook, Mrs. Aymeyer, who is a comely and respectable looking young lady, proceeded to tell the Court of the unhappy life she had been forced to lead since her marriage. She was the daughter of J. C. Stevens, a well-known stable man of Placerville, and had it not been for the financial support received from her father, she says she does not know what would have been done to her and her husband.

Aymeyer took her to San Jose, and there began to systematically abuse her, often beating her, calling her vile names, and sending her three children to the poorhouse.

Mr. Stevens, the unhappy wife's father, related how he had supported his daughter, and told of incidents of the husband's conduct.

David D. Attorney, who has known Mrs. Aymeyer since she was a mere child, testified that she was an unusually industrious, amiable and respectable lady, and one who would not exaggerate the truth.

The husband did not appear in Court to deny the charges, although he had been duly notified, and Judge Armstrong promptly granted the divorce.

The party in question had come out of the Court-room when A. C. Hinckson, attorney for Mrs. Alice Hatch, arose and announced that she was ready to proceed in Mrs. Hatch's suit for divorce from W. H. B. Hinckson.

It was a similar case to that of the Aymeyers, only that Mrs. Hatch had suffered much longer.

About six years ago her husband, W. H. Hinckson, a carpenter, and his wife, to Monterey, and at that time had contributed little or nothing toward the support of his wife and three children. Mrs. Hatch testified that she was compelled to work in a cannery and in a private family in order to supply herself and children with the necessities of life.

It was also shown that when the divorce papers were served upon Hatch, he expected his wife to sue him and leave him to Monterey, and at that time had contributed little or nothing toward the support of his wife and three children. Mrs. Hatch testified that she was compelled to work in a cannery and in a private family in order to supply herself and children with the necessities of life.

The ladies of the Sixth-street M. E. Church gave a delightful social last evening, the principal feature being the entertainment given by Miss Baldwin's kindergarten pupils. The little ones acquitted themselves admirably. The following programme was rendered: March and song by the school; singing song by the school; "Lovey May," by the school; imitation game by the school; "The Doctor," (dialogue), by Julius Weiger, Jessie White and

John C. Linnin, Co.-Gents. After using all other remedies for rheumatism without effect, my mother was cured by the use of your G. C. Liniment.

It is a truly wonderful medicine.

I am very truly yours, ZENO MAUVAS, Music Dealer, 709 Market street, S. C.

Our divorce was accordingly granted, and the custody of the children was awarded to Mrs. Hinckson.

The next instance of marital unhappiness comes in the shape of a suit for divorce, which was filed in the Superior Court yesterday by Mrs. Laura Howarth, who desires a legal separation from her husband, John Howarth, on the ground of desertion. Mrs. Howarth alleges that John left his choice within five days after the nuptial knot was tied, and skipped for parts unknown.

THE OPEN CANAL.

It Nearly Causes the Death of Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Smith.

H. G. Smith and wife had a narrow escape from drowning yesterday. They started out in street to drive to their ranch, and on reaching Thirty-first street they were about to turn over to J. when a small flag on the fence frightened the horse, and it made a lunge to one side toward the canal and landed therein with the buggy and its occupants.

The vehicle (a top buggy) overturned, and Mr. and Mrs. Smith were a terrible sight. The horse was about to fall from the canal, and the occupants fell beneath the vehicle in such a manner that Mr. Smith was held under the water, his falling drowning him.

Some one who was hauling gravel saw the accident, and hastening to the scene rescued them. The horse was so entangled in the harness and hampered by the weight of the buggy that it was unable to move, and the men had to pull it out. As it was, the horse was removed from the water, and the men had to pull it out a half dozen others.

Curtis H. Todd, a prominent turite, happened to stop at the park by accident, and he was awoke by the noise.

He was awoke by the noise, and he re-pealed to be "sporty," as the expression goes, but nevertheless, during the time he was employed at the grocery, up to Friday last, his employers never had occasion to suspect that anything was wrong with him. He has been married for a couple of years to a young lady, who those who know her say, is one of the most amiable, lovable and respectable women in Sacramento—and it was always supposed that the couple lived hand-in-hand together, and that "Jack" doted on his wife.

RAILROAD BUILDING.

Contracts Let for a Road from Merced to Oakdale.

Messrs. Turton & Knox, the well-known contractors of this city, yesterday entered into a contract with the Southern Pacific Company to build a railroad from Merced to Oakdale. The road will be forty miles in length and will pass through the mountainous country. Mr. Knox recently went over the line of the road, and says that the wheat crop of that section will be immense. Messrs. Turton & Knox, contractors, $28,000.

He will be paid $100 a day, and the work will be commenced at the Merced end and the first ten miles will be pushed as fast as possible. It is expected that the road will be in operation by the first of the month.

Next Sunday's Concert.

At next Sunday's open-air concert at the Plaza, by the First Artillery Band, another choice programme will be rendered, and it is already being rehearsed by the band.

The concert will commence promptly at 7 o'clock, and the selections will be:

March: "Sad Pads" (Stahl); overture, "Great West" (South); waltz, "Edinburgh" (waltz on Scotch melody); fantaisie, "Meyerbeer"; march, "Meyerbeer"; "Little Pack" (composed by M. F.
